

ALLIGATOR - Valves since 1920

ALLIGATOR tire valves with individual identification

Manufacturer's identification, date of production, individual marking

For a long time, the automobile industry has required the individual identification of vehicle components in order:

- to be able to ensure First-In /First-Out
- to guarantee traceability
- to be able to isolate defect batches if necessary
- ability to collect specific article data's

In the spare parts market, too, there has recently been an increasing demand for :

- an exact declaration of the date of production
- identification with customer logo
- further markings

An economically justifiable solution for rubber products was not possible up to now.

NEW for OEM customers and for the spare parts market:

ALLIGATOR valves with individual identification

Individual identification, traceability, safety

- individual marking on rubber valves
- permanently visible
- up to 3 lines of text or graphics are possible e.g.
 - specific article number
 - customer logo
 - date of production
- no damage to the valve / No function impairment
- visible without having to remove the valve
- marginal costs due to large-volume production
